To the extraordinary students at Furman University who enrolled in my classes—you remain some of the finest people I know.

RHM

To my wife, Jessica, without whom I would accomplish very little; my son, Jackson, who keeps me motivated to succeed in order to make him proud; and to my family who has sacrificed so much to get me to where I am in life. To my wonderful students over the years; and finally, this is dedicated to all those people who were told they “never could.”

Acknowledgments

As with any project, there are many people to thank for their efforts in bringing this manuscript to publication. Specifically we would like to thank Rhonda Stefanini, a former student at Western Carolina University for her help with collecting literature for the domestic violence project. Additionally, Lesleigh Patton deserves mention for her help in organizing the project and keeping track of deadlines and participants. We would also like to thank each contributor for their insightful and thoughtful articles that comprise this reader. Finally, thanks goes to Beth Hall and the staff at Carolina Academic Press for their encouragement, support, and expertise.
