

PROTEST AND PUNISHMENT

PROTEST AND PUNISHMENT

---

The Repression of Resistance in the Era of Neoliberal Globalization

Edited by

Jeff Shantz

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2012
Jeff Shantz
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Protest and punishment : the Repression of resistance in the Era of Neoliberal Globalization / [edited by] Jeffrey Shantz.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references.

ISBN 978-1-61163-088-6 (alk. paper)

1. Political crimes and offenses. 2. Dissenters. 3. Demonstrations. 4. Protest movements. 5. Globalization--Political aspects. I. Shantz, Jeff.

HV6254.P76 2012

364.1'31--dc23

2011052597

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

To Saoirse & Molly
and for all those who continue to resist repression
as they make a better world possible

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xi
Protest and Punishment: An Introduction	3
Jeff Shantz
Criminalizing Dissent in Liberal Democracies: An Overview	3
Overview	4
Punishing Protest: An Ongoing History	8
Practices of Punishment	10
Protecting Power	12
Onward	14
Protest in a Liberal Democracy	15
Brian Martin
Limiting and Controlling Protest	18
Repressing Dissent	22
Conclusion	25
Illuminated in Its Lurid Light: Criminalization, Political Repression, and Dissent in the UK	29
Christian Garland
Introduction	29
Globalization in Question: In Search of a Concept	30
Neoliberalism as Ideology and Practice	33
Neoliberal Globalization/Globalizing Neoliberalism	35
A Decade of Dissent: Alter-Globalization and Anti-Capitalist Mobilizations, A Comparative Analysis	37
State Repression and the Criminalization of Dissent: The UK Experience	39

The FBI's Attack on Dissent	49
Ivan Greenberg
No Peace Dividend for the FBI	50
Who Are the Terrorists?	53
The FBI and Bush's "War on Terror"	59
New York City	65
"October Plan"	67
Carceral Forms and Penal Practice from Poulo Condor to the PATRIOT Act: When Counterrevolutionary Chickens Come Home to Roost	77
Brendan McQuade
The Knowledges of the (Neo)Colonial Prison: Revolutionary Nationalism and Counterinsurgency	82
"Chickens Come Home to Roost": The Structural Importance of the Phoenix Program and Vietnamization	86
Counterrevolutionary Chickens: Counterterrorism and Counterinsurgency in the Neoliberal Context	93
This Is Not a Riot: Minimization, Criminalization and the Policing of Protest in Seattle Prior to the 1999 WTO Shut-Down	107
Leanne Serbulo
Introduction	107
The Battle in Seattle and Subsequent Shift in Protest Policing Strategies	109
The Minimization of Protest as a Policing Strategy in Seattle	112
From Minimization to Criminalization: When Activists Push the Boundaries, Police React with Force	117
Minimization Policing at the Battle in Seattle	119
Discussion and Analysis	123
Conclusion	126
Policing the "Summer of Rage": Maintaining Post-Politics against the Specter of Dissensus	131
Nathan Eisenstadt
From Post-Politics to a Politics of Rupture	133
From a Politics of Rupture to Policing Post-politics	136

Practicing a Politics of Rupture—Intentions and Actions of Participants	137
Policing the “Summer of Rage”	142
Containment and Registration	143
The Securitization of Autonomous Space	146
The Production of Irrational Subjects	149
Humanizing/De-humanizing the Other	154
Concluding Remarks	157
Brutality and Consent as a Cohesive Dialectic	157
The Contingency of the Post-Political	158
The Power of Framing ... and Feeling	159
Protest as “Extremism”: The Criminalization of Dissent within Dutch Immigration Policy	167
Olga Aksyutina
“Refugees Must Flee Again!” or the Potential of an Offence Is Punishable	167
The Criminalization of Protest in the State Discourse	170
“Extremism”?	173
Protest as “Extremism”	176
Stop Deportations	177
“Banner War”	180
Deportation Prisons for Activists	183
Conclusion	184
Protesting Degree Zero: On Black Bloc Tactics, Culture and Building the Movement	193
Marc James Léger
Wild in the Streets	195
Twice Around the Bloc	201
Aesthetics, Politics, History	206
A Black Hole in Reality	211
Protest and Punishment in Canada: From Legislation to Martial Law	219
Jeff Shantz
Punishing the Poor: The June 15, 2000 Police Riot and the Criminalization of Anti-Poverty Movements	221

Acts of (Anti-)Terrorism	222
Kananaskis 2002: Anti-Terrorism, Protest, and the Militarization of Public Space	225
The Toronto 2010 G8 Meetings: “Public Works” and Martial Law Same as the Old	227
On Native Land	230
From Liberal to Neo-Liberal Democracy	233
Anti-Terrorism and Social Division	234
Anti-Terrorism and Movement Building	236
Initial Notes on Occupy Movements and Repression	239
Jeff Shantz
Why Occupy?	241
Shifting Terrain: New Movements, New Challenges	244
Occupying Repression: The 1% Respond	246
Mainstream Media and the Evictions	252
A Tale of Two Movements	253
Conclusion	256
Contributors	261
Index	263

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I must begin by acknowledging and thanking all those, everywhere, who continue organizing resistance to unjust economic, political, and social structures. They do so under great, and growing, risk to personal liberty and freedom for themselves, their loved ones, and communities. Without their efforts the values of freedom and social justice that people hold so dear could not be realized even in a minor way.

Personally I must thank Saoirse and Molly Shantz for their ongoing energy, enthusiasm, and playfulness. They always provide real reminders about all that is important. Thanks must also go to PJ Lilley for so many deeds.

I also want to thank the contributors to this volume. They have provided an important service to advance efforts to understand issues of protest and punishment, resistance and repression in this period of crisis. Things move quickly and their insights are invaluable in grasping a range of crucial processes that are shaping current realities and future possibilities. I must also thank them for their patience as the process of publication has unfolded.

Chapter 1 originally appeared as: Martin Brian. 1994. "Protest in a Liberal Democracy." Philosophy and Social Action 20(1-2): 13-24.